Re: Response to the request to change ethics rules for prosecutors

Dear Chair Alan Steinbrecher and Interim Executive Director Donna Hershkowitz:

On June 1, 2020, a coalition of four current and former District Attorneys sent a letter urging the California State Bar to pass a Rule of Professional Conduct prohibiting prosecutors from accepting political donations from police unions. Peace Officers Research Association of California (“PORAC”) strongly opposes the proposed rule, which is an overt attempt to muzzle the political speech of organizations opposed to these candidates of so-called criminal justice reform. The pretextual basis for the proposed rule-potential conflicts in the prosecutions of peace officers-are easily managed under the existing Rules of Professional Conduct. The true motivation for the rule change is to silence their political opponents while imposing no constraints on the political participation of organizations conditioning their support for District Attorney candidates on predetermined charging decisions, a reduction of incarceration through lower sentences, refusal to seek the death penalty, and hinging prosecutorial decisions on immigration status.

The proposed rule intentionally discriminates against law enforcement unions and violates their First Amendment rights. Moreover, the proposal is a political ploy designed to increase the electoral prospects of its authors by silencing the political voice of their opponents who advocate for victims’ rights and justice. The proponents’ insincerity is demonstrated by the omission of any constraints on the organizations representing criminal defendants and prisoners, who not only have an direct interest in the District Attorneys’ exercise of their discretion but also condition support on a predetermination of cases that will come before them. The establishment of a partisan political advantage has no place in the rules that govern the ethical duties of the legal profession.

I. The Proposed Rule is Unconstitutional

A. The First Amendment protects campaign endorsements and expenditures.

It is well established that unions have the right to freedom of speech under the First Amendment. (Citizens United v. Federal Election Commission (2010) 588 U.S. 310 (Citizens United)). This includes the right to make campaign expenditures. (Buckley v. Valeo (1976) 424 U.S. 1.) In Woodland Hills Residents Association, Inc. v. City Council of City of Los Angeles (1980) 26 Cal.3d 938, 946, the California Supreme Court affirmed that campaign donations are protected political speech, and that a donation in itself does not give rise to a conflict of interest. The court determined that city council members could not be disqualified from voting on a subdivision map for a conflict of interest merely because developers had donated to the council members' campaigns. (Ibid.) The court stated, "Political contribution involves an exercise of fundamental freedom protected by the First Amendment..." (Ibid.) "To disqualify a city council member from acting on a development proposal because the developer made a campaign contribution to that member would threaten constitutionally protected political speech and associational freedoms." (Ibid.) In Caperton v. A.T. Massey Coal, Co., Inc. (2009) 556 U.S. 868, 884, the U.S. Supreme Court found that a judge should have recused himself from a case where one of the parties had contributed significantly to his campaign. However, the Court noted that this was "an exceptional case," and there was a "serious risk of actual bias" because of the disproportionately large donation. (Ibid.) Further, disqualification rules applicable to adjudicators are even more stringent than those that govern the conduct of prosecutors. (County of Santa Clara v. Superior Ct. (2010) 50 Cal.4th 25, 56 fn.12.) This case law makes clear that campaign endorsements and financial contributions to a campaign are forms of protected political speech, and do not create a conflict of interest.

B. The proposed rule violates the First Amendment because it is viewpoint-based.

Perhaps the most important principle of the First Amendment is that the government cannot regulate speech based on its content or viewpoint. (See, e.g., Police Department of Chicago v. Mosley (1972) 408 U.S. 92, 95; R.A.V. v. City of Saint Paul (1992) 505 U.S. 377, 382.) Content based restrictions on speech are "presumptively invalid." (R.A.V. v. City of Saint Paul, supra, 505 U.S. at p. 382.) Thus, courts use strict scrutiny when evaluating laws or regulations that discriminate against speech because of the viewpoint it espouses. (Turner Broadcasting System v. Federal Communication Commission (1994) 512 U.S. 622; see also United States v. Playboy Entertainment Group, Inc. (2000) 539 U.S. 803.)

The proposed rule is undeniably viewpoint based. It prohibits campaign contributions and endorsements by law enforcement unions alone and does nothing to prevent other organizations from contributing to D.A. campaigns. It is no accident that the members of the coalition are not supported by their local law enforcement unions. Adopting such a rule would allow the coalition's

Brian R. Marvel
President

Damon Kurtz
Vice President

Timothy Davis
Treasurer

Randy Beintema
Secretary

supporters to contribute to their campaigns while silencing their opponents. It is a political maneuver masquerading as an ethics rule, and it cannot withstand constitutional muster.

The proposed rule is overbroad, speculative, and fails to genuinely address the issue of a conflict. To pass the high standard of strict scrutiny, the law must be narrowly tailored to achieve a compelling government interest. (United States v. Playboy Entertainment Group, Inc., supra, 539 U.S. at p. 813.) The coalition claims that the rule is justified to prevent any conflict of interest that might arise if a D.A. was forced to prosecute a member of the police union that had contributed to that D.A.'s election. Ensuring the integrity of the legal profession and effectively dealing with conflicts of interest is undoubtedly a compelling government interest. However, this proposed conflict is speculative and attenuated. The authors of this proposed rule are assuming that an individual officer may be charged, that the police union may fund their defense, that the union may have supported the D.A. who is handling the case, and that the D.A. will not recuse themselves in light of the conflict. This sort of speculation does not meet the high standard that strict scrutiny requires.

A blanket rule restricting police unions' participation in prosecutor elections is not a necessary or even effective solution. Attorney General Xavier Becerra has already analyzed the issue and came to the same conclusion: D.A. campaign contributions alone do not give rise to a conflict of interest. (See Enclosure A.) Should a true conflict of interest arise, the D.A. can simply recuse themselves from the case and ask another attorney to handle it. A hypothetical future conflict should not be used as justification to suppress the rights of one class of people.

II. The True Purpose for the Rule is to Promote the Authors' Political Agenda

This proposal is not only unconstitutional, it is disingenuous. It is not surprising that the D.A.s advocating for this rule are opposed by their local law enforcement unions. Forbidding union participation in elections would take money and resources away from their opponents. Meanwhile, the coalition would remain free to accept contributions from their own supporters. A sincere proposal would eliminate contributions and endorsements to D.A. races from all organizations, regardless of their viewpoint or politics. In short, it makes little sense to forbid police unions from contributing to elections, but continue to allow progressive groups like the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU), California Attorneys for Criminal Justice, or the National Association for Criminal Defense Lawyers to do so.

Review of police use of force makes up less than 1 percent of a D.A.'s duties. 99 percent of their time is spent prosecuting and charging accused criminals. The coalition's supporters have political agendas that create a much more direct and reoccurring conflict. For example, the ACLU's Campaign for Smart Justice seeks to "empower a new generation of prosecutors committed to reducing incarceration." (ACLU, ACLU Launches New Initiative to Overhaul Prosecutorial Practices (April 26, 2017) <<https://www.aclu.org/press-releases/aclu-launches-new-initiative->

President

Damon Kurtz
Vice President

Timothy Davis

overhaul-prosecutorial-practices>.) The Equal Justice Initiative advocates for ending mandatory minimum sentences and habitual offender statutes. (Equal Justice Initiative, Criminal Justice Reform <<https://eji.org/criminal-justice-reform/>> [as of June 12, 2020].) Billionaire George Soros has channeled millions of dollars into D.A. campaigns with the goal of expanding drug diversion programs and reducing sentences. (Bland, George Soros' quiet overhaul of the U.S. justice system, Politico (August 30, 2016) <<https://www.politico.com/story/2016/08/george-soros-criminal-justice-reform-227519>>.) These policies go to the heart of the D.A.'s job. Electing D.A.'s who promise to implement these sorts of policies will affect how 99 percent of the D.A.'s duties are carried out. This certain conflict is far broader than the hypothetical conflict with police unions that the rule is designed to address.

In a clear example of this conflict, the ACLU of California sends out a questionnaire to all D.A. candidates to help their affiliates determine which candidate to back. (ACLU of Cal., California District Attorney Candidate Questionnaire (2018) <<https://www.cdca.org/wp-content/uploads/ACLU-California-District-Attorney-Candidate-Questionnaire.pdf>> [as of June 8, 2020].) Some of these questions include:

- Will you commit to implementing practices that will reduce the jail population and reduce state prison commitments by a specific percentage by the end of your first term? (Question 2.)
- Do you commit to ending the use of money bail in this County? (Question 12.)
- Will you pledge to adopt a written policy and training which encourages prosecutors to consider the unintended immigration-related consequences of prosecutorial decisions at all stages of a case and to use their discretion to reach immigration-safe dispositions for noncitizens whenever it is possible and appropriate? (Question 17.)
- Will you commit to keeping all children out of adult court by pledging not to prosecute any minors as adults and by expanding the use of informal diversion and pre-filing diversion in juvenile cases? (Question 20.)

Not only does this questionnaire condition support on pre-determining cases that have not yet arisen, it also constitutes a commitment to deny individuals equal protection in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment. The advocates of criminal defendants and convicted individuals call for the D.A. to charge and treat individuals differently based on immigration status. If a state or local legislature were to enact a law that made distinctions on who to prosecute based on race, ethnicity, or immigration status, it would be promptly invalidated on constitutional grounds. D.A.'s, by contrast, can achieve a similarly discriminatory result under the guise of prosecutorial discretion.

In sum, if the Bar is inclined to implement policies that bar speech due to a conflict of interest, the ACLU and other criminal justice reform groups have a much larger conflict. The questions posed in the questionnaire and the policies they advocate for involve the core functions of the D.A.'s Office. The way a D.A. answers these questions will have a huge impact on their community. Allowing progressive organizations to have a say in electing D.A.'s but barring police unions from doing so creates an uneven playing field. It allows one side to impose the candidates and policies they support while stifling competing viewpoints. Adopting such a rule would be unconstitutional and unjust.

III. There are Already Effective Systems in Place to Deal with Conflicts of Interest

As the coalition's letter mentions, there are already Rules of Professional Conduct that address how attorneys should respond when faced with a conflict of interest. Rule 1.7 prohibits a lawyer from representing a client when, "the lawyer has...a legal business, financial, professional, or personal relationship with or to a party or witness in the same matter." (State Bar Rules Prof. Conduct 1.7.) Further, the American Bar Association has outlined standards for prosecutors. These standards include that prosecutors should not allow their "professional judgement or obligations to be affected by the prosecutor's personal, political, financial, professional, business, property or other interests or relationships." (3 ABA Stds. for Crim. Justice (4th ed. 2017), The Prosecution Function standard 3-1.7(f).) When such a conflict exists, "the prosecutor should recuse from further participation in the matter." (Id. at standard 3-1.7(a).)

Penal Code section 1424 also deals with recusal of a D.A.'s office due to a conflict of interest. Under section 1424, recusal of a D.A.'s office requires proof of a conflict of interest that makes it unlikely that the defendant could receive a fair trial if that D.A.'s office prosecutes the case. A conflict has been described as "a structural incentive for the prosecutor to elevate some other interest over the interest in impartial justice, should the two diverge." (People v. Superior Court (Humberto S.) (2008) 43 Cal.4th 737, 754.) "[A] prosecutor's interest should coincide with the interest of the public in bringing a criminal to justice and should not be under the influence of third parties who have a particular axe to grind against the defendant." (People v. Parmar (2001) 86 Cal.App.4th 781, 797 (Parmar).)

There are very few published cases in which a disabling conflict has been found. These cases generally only arise when an employee of the D.A.'s office is a victim of a crime, the D.A. represented the defendant previously, or the D.A.'s office received money for investigative costs from a victim. (See People v. Conner (1983) 34 Cal.3d 141 [D.A. employee victim of the crime]; People v. Lepe (1985) 164 Cal.App.3d 685 [D.A. previously represented the defendant]; People v. Eubanks (1996) 14 Cal.4th 580 [D.A. received money from the victim]). As stated in Parmar, "... Eubanks and virtually every other disqualification case has been concerned with situations in which the prosecutor has either had a personal interest or been claimed to be under the influence of a private party with a personal interest in the prosecution of the particular defendant, usually by virtue of having been a victim." (People v. Parmar, supra, 86 Cal.App.4th at p. 795.)

Brian R. Marvel
President

Damon Kurtz
Vice President

Timothy Davis
Treasurer

Randy Beintema
Secretary

In the rare case that there is a true conflict of interest, D.A.'s have a myriad of ways to resolve the conflict. In many instances, conflicts of interest can be handled by establishing an ethical wall around the affected employee. (See Stark v. Superior Court (2011) 52 Cal.4th 368; People v. Gamache (2010) 48 Cal.4th 347; People v. Hamilton (1985) 41 Cal.3d 211; People v. Sy (2014) 223 Cal.App.4th 44; Hambarian v. Superior Court (2002) 27 Cal.4th 826; People v. Lopez (1984) 155 Cal.App.3d 813; and Trujillo v. Superior Court (1983) 148 Cal.App.3d 368.) If there is a conflict with the office as a whole, another D.A.'s office, the Attorney General, or the U.S. Attorney can take over the case. If their impartiality is questioned after the fact, they can ask the Attorney General or U.S. Attorney to review their work. These measures can, and do, cure conflicts of interest in the small number of cases that they arise.

IV. Conclusion

This proposed rule is frankly inappropriate and exploitative. It is a poorly disguised attempt to silence the author's opponents and amplify the voices of their supporters. There are already rules and systems in place to deal with any legitimate conflicts of interest that might arise between prosecutors and police unions. It makes little sense to bar the participation of police unions but allow progressive groups that have a much more direct conflict to continue bankrolling D.A. elections. Arguably, under the rationale advanced by the coalition, all contributions or endorsements to any attorney who runs for elected office should be prohibited. Ultimately, this is not about true conflicts of interest. It is a political issue. It should be dealt with at the ballot box and not in the Rules of Professional Conduct.

RE: Conflict of Interest Analysis – Campaign Contributions

Dear Mr. Blazina:

In your letter, dated February 5, 2018, you asked whether campaign endorsements and contributions from an individual or an organization present a conflict that bars the District Attorney from impartially deciding whether to prosecute a case in which that individual is a potential defendant. Your questions focused on an officer-involved-shooting case in which an officer being prosecuted was a member of a labor union that had endorsed and financially contributed to the district attorney's campaign. The short answer to these questions is that there is no conflict.

Under Penal Code section 1424, recusal of a district attorney's office requires proof of a conflict of interest that makes it unlikely that the defendant could receive a fair trial if the district attorney's office prosecutes the case. A conflict has been described as "a structural incentive for the prosecutor to elevate some other interest over the interest in impartial justice, should the two diverge." (People v. Superior Court (Humberto S.) (2008) 43 Cal.4th 737, 754.) "[A] prosecutor's interest should coincide with the interest of the public in bringing a criminal to justice and should not be under the influence of third parties who have a particular axe to grind against the defendant." (People v. Parmar (2001) 86 Cal.App.4th 781, 797 (Parmar)).

Published cases in which a disabling conflict has been found are few and generally fall into the following three categories: an employee of the district attorney's office is a crime victim (see People v. Conner (1983) 34 Cal.3d 141, Lewis v. Superior Court (1997) 53 Cal.App.4th 1277; People v. Jenan (2006) 140 Cal.App.4th 782); the district attorney represented the defendant previously (People v. Lepe (1985) 164 Cal.App.3d 685); or the district attorney's office received money for investigative costs from a victim (see People v. Eubanks (1996) 14 Cal.4th 580). As stated in Parmar, "...Eubanks and virtually every other disqualification case has been concerned with situations in which the prosecutor has either had a personal interest or been claimed to be under the influence of a private party with a personal interest in the prosecution of the particular defendant, usually by virtue of having been a victim." (People v. Parmar, supra, 86 Cal.App.4th at p. 795.)

In many instances, cases with conflicts of interest can be handled by a district attorney's office after an ethical wall has been established around the affected employee. (See Stark v. Superior Court (2011) 52 Cal.4th 368; People v. Gamache (2010) 48 Cal.4th 347; People v. Hamilton (1985) 41 Cal.3d 211; People v. Sy (2014) 223 Cal.App.4th 44; Hambarian v. Superior Court (2002) 27 Cal.4th 826; People v. Lopez (1984) 155 Cal.App.3d 813; and Trujillo v. Superior Court (1983) 148 Cal.App.3d 368.) That focus on fair adjudication of a case is borne out by the fact that failure to recuse a district attorney's office can be harmless on appeal when the district attorney's office "did not infringe upon defendants' state or federal rights to due process of law." (People v. Vasquez (2006) 39 Cal.4th 47, 66.) An ethical wall ensures that a defendant receives a fair trial.

The few published cases ordering recusal, as well as courts' acceptance of ethical walls in lieu of recusal, demonstrate that recusal is a disfavored remedy that appellate courts have cautioned should be exercised with "particular caution." (People v. Lopez (1984) 155 Cal.App.3d 813, 821-822.) The policy reasons for this position were set out in Lopez:

'when the entire prosecutorial office of the district attorney is recused and the Attorney General is required to undertake the prosecution or employ a special prosecutor, the district attorney is prevented from carrying out the statutory duties of his elected office and, perhaps even more significantly, the residents of the county are deprived of the services of their elected representative in the prosecution of crime in the county. The Attorney General is, of course, an elected state official, but unlike the district attorney, is not accountable at the ballot box exclusively to the electorate of the county. Manifestly, therefore, the entire prosecutorial office of the district attorney should not be recused in the absence of some substantial reason related to the proper administration of criminal justice.'

As to whether political contributions create a conflict of interest, it was claimed in another case that city council members should have been disqualified from voting on a subdivision map because developers had donated to the council members' campaigns. The Supreme Court stated, "Political contribution involves an exercise of fundamental freedom protected by the First Amendment to the United States Constitution and article I, section 2 of the California Constitution.” (Woodland Hills Residents Association, Inc. v. City Council of City of Los Angeles (1980) 26 Cal.3d 938, 946.) “To disqualify a city council member from acting on a development proposal because the developer had made a campaign contribution to that member would threaten constitutionally protected political speech and associational freedoms.” (Ibid.) The Court further found that law governing disclosure of campaign contributions “provides for disclosure of campaign contributions by recipients of contributions rather than disqualification of recipients from acting in matters in which the contributor is interested.” (Ibid.)

While the act precludes an elected official from participating in a decision in which he has ‘a financial interest’ (Gov. Code, § 87100), it expressly excludes from definition of ‘financial interest’ the receipt of campaign contributions. (Gov. Code, §§ 87103, subd. (c), 82030, subd. (b). Thus, the Political Reform Act -- dealing comprehensively with problems of campaign contribution and conflict of interest -- does not prevent a city council member from acting upon a matter involving the contributor.

(Id., at pp. 946-947; see also Caperton v. A.T. Massey Coal, Co. Inc. (2009) 129 S.Ct. 2252, 2263 [“exceptional case” where campaign contributions required recusal of a judge]. Disqualification rules applicable to adjudicators are even more stringent than those that govern the conduct of prosecutors. (County of Santa Clara v. Superior Ct. (2010) 50 Cal.4th 25, 56 FN 12.)

Accordingly, the mere fact of campaign endorsements and financial contributions to a campaign does not create a conflict of interest for a district attorney. Case law makes clear that a conflict of interest stems from the district attorney’s perspective, not the public’s perception, and is rooted in the ability of a district attorney to wield discretion in a way to ensure that the defendant will receive a fair trial. The factual hypotheticals posed in your letter do not suggest that the District Attorney could not be fair to defendants who had either individually, or as part of an organization, endorsed or contributed financially to the District Attorney’s re-election campaign.

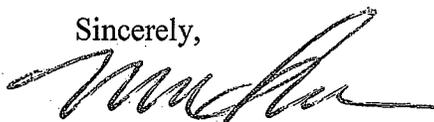

Your final question is, even if there was no legal conflict disabling the district attorney, would the Attorney General’s Office conduct a review of an officer-involved shooting simply to avoid an appearance of conflict? Sound policy counsels otherwise. The primary duty for enforcement of law in a particular county rests with the local district attorney, who is elected by the citizens of that county. Significant good cause is called for to warrant departure from the standard of Penal Code section 1424.

Additionally, the Attorney General’s unavoidable constraints of personnel, funds, and other resources require that the Penal Code section 1424 standard be taken seriously.
